Housing authority hires Belmore as interim director

The Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) Tuesday night voted to hire Ella Be'lmore as interim executive director of the WHA.

Mrs. Belmore will fill the shoes of Lillian Buckley, who has resigned, effective at the end of the week. The authority is also without a secretary at this time.

The motion to hire Mrs. Belmore on a temporary basis was made by William Strob, after the idea was proposed by Dan Gillis.

"We're going to be in exceedingly difficult trouble in the office," said Gillis, referring to Buckley's leaving.

Can Kevin McMillan agreed, saying that the authority had never had so much progress in 30 years. The authority is presently in the midst of building eight units of family housing, preparing to renovate the existing 40 units of elderly housing at Deming Way, and preparing to build 32 more units of elderly housing.

"I'll be darned if we're going to be without a director," McMillan said.

Mrs. Belmore had served as secretary to the Wilmington Conservation Commission until being fired by Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski in June.

Lillian Buckley resigned the executive director's post because it entailed full-time work at part-time pay. The position pays $14,400 per year, based on a 20-hour week. Mrs. Buckley said that anyone doing a conscientious job would have to put in full-time hours. "Even Superman couldn't do it in 20 hours," she said.

The state's refusal to increase the pay of housing authority executive directors has resulted in 60 resignations in the past year, said Gillis. The state Executive Office of Communities and Development virtually controls local housing authorities in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Buckley had held the post

New tenant?

Attendance at the Wilmington Housing Authority meeting Monday night was kind of thin, since the meeting was rescheduled to Tuesday night. The only ones who showed up were Dan Gillis and your editor -- and this young possum, who walked right across the front doorstep of the Deming Way community hall. The possum's application for housing had to be refused.

Water tower

Wilmington's proposed water tower would be constructed in the same manner as this tower in Rhode Island, made of concrete slabs. The tower is planned for a location in the town forest, off Andover Street.

Water tower in the works

A three million gallon water tower is being planned to be erected on the hill between Ballardvale Street and Andover Street. The water commissioners on August 6th instructed engineer Bill Glover, of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, to begin the planning.

The tank is to be of concrete, and will be located in the town forest that adjoins Camp Forty Acres. At the time the town forest was voted, in town meeting about 10 years ago, an area was set aside and reserved for a water tower.

A 12 inch water main, from Ballardvale Street to the town forest was laid by the Tambone Corporation, on contract to the town, while that company was constructing its own water mains. The Wilmington Water Department supplied the pipe.

The new water tower will more than double the town's storage capacity. Glover was instructed to have preliminary plans prepared that the commissioners cna use in a town meeting, sometime this winter or next spring at the annual town meeting.

Radio robbers hit Hyundai dealership

Thieves targeting a particular type of car radio hit Wilmington Hundai on Monday night last week. Employees of the dealership discovered on Tuesday morning that the radios had been stolen from 51 cars on the lot. In addition, 15 windows were broken to gain entry to vehicles which were not locked.

The robbers by-passed the cheaper model, going for the GLS sport model, which has a Panasonic stereo tape deck.

Officer Jim Peterson said that a similar robbery took place the night before at Brest Hundai in Lynn, where 57 radios were taken.

Modernization set for Deming Way

A $200,000 modernization project is ready to begin at Wilington's housing for the elderly on Deming Way. The Wilmington Housing Authority will hold a pre-construction meeting with the contractor, Morello Bros., on Friday.

The project will include insulating walls from the inside, installation of ventillation and range hoods, ripping up and installing new floors and door sills, and painting. The $214,142 contract calls for completion of the work in 110 days.

During the construction, three modular housing units will be set up at Deming Way to house tenants.

With one apartment already vacant, there will then be four apartments open for the renovation.

Betty Keough has been hired to act as liason between the tenants and the clerk of the works. She is working with the tenants to help prepare them for moving.

The 40 housing units were constructed in 1957.

Environmental notice filed on condo plan

by Arlene Surprenant

An Environmental Notification Form (ENF) concerning Jay Tighe's Shawsheen River Estates has been filed with the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. The public now has a 20 day period to comment on the dense 414 unit condominium project proposed for the Reed - Dorchester Street area.

According to consultant Mary Trudeau who prepared the form, construction on the $45,000,000 project is expected to get underway January 1988 and last through January 1991. During that time, noise and dust impacts will be principally felt by residents of the Reed Street-Dorchester Street area.

The ENF lists long and short term impacts to traffic, wildlife, agricultural land, vegetation, water supply, aesthetics, and growth.

The biggest traffic increase is expected on Reed Street and Third Avenue, where roads are expected to access the property. According to the ENF, estimated average daily traffic on Reed Street and Harold Avenue will increase from 200 to 1,932 cars per day. Traffic on Third Avenue and Dorchester Street will increase from 400 to 1,400 cars per day. Traffic studies were conducted on Hopkins Street by BSC Engineering in June, 1987.

According to the engineering firm of Robert Anderson Inc, the "bulk of the site's runoff will be discharged first to a detention pond, and ultimately to the Shawsheen River." Urbanization of the site is expected to generate such runoff pollutants as nutrients and suspended solids. The firm also points out there will be "no significant changes in natural drainage patterns."

Other information in the ENF deals with the connection to the MWRA sewer system and utilization of town water, the generation of 3400 pounds of solid waste per day, and the construction of 860 parking spaces on site.

At last Wednesday's Conservation Commission meeting, members directed Administrator Libby Sabounjian to send a leter to the EOEA asking that an Environmental Impact Report be done on the site because of the project's size.They asked her to give reasons for their request and added they had concerns about sewerage, water, and the environment.

Don Ugolini said he felt the project could be a "catalyst case against the state." Other town boards are expected to comment on the ENF.

At last week's board meeting, selectmen voted to provide monies from the reserve fund to take immediate steps to hire a consulting attorney. The attorney would provide assistance and expertise to the town as it tries to deal with both the Shawsheen River Estates development and IMG's Arboretum Apartments project off Arlene Avenue. Additional monies would be voted on at September's Special Town Meeting.

Selectmen Chairman Robert Cain suggested using $30,000 as initial "seed money." Bob Doucette said they should spend whatever it takes because the combined impact of the two projects could be so great. Dennis Volpe of Reed Street and Bob Gosse of the Arlene Avenue area acted as spokesmen for neighbors in their area who are determined to fight the developments. It was pointed out the town is already compiling a list of firms which could provide the neccessary assistance. State monies would also be available once the town becomes a Massachusetts Housing Partner.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said a Water Impact Study is going to be "one contingency" placed on Tighe before he is allowed to hook into the Wilmington sewer system. Stapczynski made his statement following the reading of a letter from the Water and Sewer Commissioners which said six inch water mains on Shawsheen Avenue contribute to the low water pressure felt in the Reed Street area.

Water rates to increase

Water bills from the Wilmington Water and Sewer Department will increase soon for all customers. The commissioners have decided on a 40 percent increase, in the near future.

The commissioners made the announcement about the time that they were reviewing the unpaid water bills.

One home, the commissioners learned, has been receiving water from the Water Department since 1973, without the knowledge of the department. Since the discovery the payment problem has received prompt attention.

Tewksbury police news

During the week ending August 10, Tewksbury police responded to 20 motor vehicle accidents, seven reported larcenies, 15 reported disturbances, and made 4 arrests.

Accidents: On August 4, a motor vehicle accident occurred on Route 133 by Interstate 495 and a dog was reportedly hit on Chandler Street.

A hit-and-run was reported on Main Street by the Tewksbury Market on August 5. Accidents that day were also reported on Main Street by Pushcart and on the Lowell - Tewksbury line.

On August 6, a hit-and-run occurred in the parking lot of the Oakdale Mall and an accident was reported at the intersection of Bridge and Shawsheen Streets.

Motor vehicles accidents were reported on August 7 on Main Street; at the corner of Brown and South Streets; on Shawsheen Street, and a hit-and-run on Pike Street.

A fatal accident took place on River Road on August 8, in which a car struck a utility pole. Another accident took place at the same location one week previous. Motor vehicle accidents that day were also reported on Marston Street and at the corner of Pleasant and Dewey Streets.

On August 9, motor vehicle accidents took place on Main Street by the Holiday Inn; at the intersection of Whipple Road and Chandler Street; and another at the corner of Pleasant and Main Streets involving personal injury.

An accident took place on South Street which resulted in property damaged on August 10, along with a motor vehicle accident at the intersection of Chandler and Main Streets.

Disturbance: Malicious damage was reported to a sign in front of the Snack Shack on August 4, while a Euclid Road resident that day reported a large group of youths and a fire at the end of the street.

An attempted break-in was discovered on Newton Avenue on August 5, along with a break-in and larceny on Franklin Street.

The manager of McDonalds reported someone allegedly passed out in the Main Street restauraunt on August 6; and a break-in was reported at the Caswell Motel.

On August 7, a Wabanola Way resident reported that his car was egged on Andover Street; a Lake Street resident reported malicious damage to a fence done by a motor vehicle; gunshots were heard on North Street and a fight was reported behind the Caswell Motel.

A patron of New England Grand Prix on Main Street reported that the windshield of his car had been smashed on August 8.

A Chapman Road resident on August 9 reported that his front picture window had been broken; a Wolcott Street resident reported malicious damage to his house; and later that day a Moonlight Drive resident reported that someone bombed his mailbox with fireworks.

Larcenies: On August 4, an East Street resident reported a motorcycle license plate had been stolen; and the manager of Market Basket in the Stadium Plaza reported $220 worth of lottery tickets had been stolen.

A South Street resident reported that her car was allegedly stolen by her son, which later resulted in his arrest on August 7. A patron of Stadium Plaza reported that a duffle bag was stolen out of his car.

A Foster Road resident reported lawn figurines stolen from his front yard, also on the seventh.

On August 10, the Atamain Volkswagon dealership reported four tires had been stolen; and a Columbia Road resident reported a bike had been taken.

Arrests: Scott Swanson, 30, of Hodgson St., Tewksbury, was arrested on August 5 by Officers Donovan and Barry and charged with driving while intoxicated and screeching tires.

Richard Murphy, 33, of Main St., Tewksbury, was arrested on August 7 and charged with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene an accident after causing property damage, and driving without an inspection sticker. The arrest was made by Officer Dorherty.

James Devlin, 20, of South Street, Tewksbury, was arrested and charged with larceny of a motor vehicle. The arrest was made by officer Doherty on August 7.

Scott McLeod, 23, of Andover, was arrested and charged with driving under the influence and failure to keep right. The arrest was made by Officers Tanguay and Layne on August 8.

Corenco hearing August 20

Members of the Tewksbury Board of Health will be attending a meeting on August 20 to discuss the odor situation from Corenco. The meeting will be at 10 a.m. at the office of the Lowell Board of Health, on Arcanda Drive. The state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering is expected to send representative.

Health Director Bill McMenimen told the board that there have been no recent complaints about odors from Billerica-based Corenco. It could be, be mused, that the firm has been working on the problem for a long time and has finally succeeded in its task of eliminating odors emanating from the facility.

Jeff Murphy studying at Tanglewood

Jeffrey Murphy of Wilmington is participating in the Boston University Tanglewood Institute, a group of programs concentrating on musical study and performance, held July 28 to August 23 at the Tanglewood Music Center in Lenox.

Enrolled in the Young Artists Instrumental Program at the Institute, Murphy has studied percussion for eight years. A senior at Wilmington High School, he is the son of Joseph and Catherine Murphy of Gunderson Road.

Established in 1965 of the Boston University School for the Arts in conjunction with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Boston University Tanglewood Institute has become known for its musical quality, enthusiasm and commitment. It provides music students the opportunity to learn from members of the Boston Syumphony Orchestra, faculty members of the Boston University School of Music, and other professional musicians.

British visitors

Adrian Hyde of Leichester (left) and Dave Pitchford of Stoke on Trent in Staffordshire have been visiting in Wilmington during the past several weeks. Their hosts were Julie and Graham LeGrove of 3 Pilcher Drive, who have been in the US for about a year.

LeGrove is the technical manager for a company that makes automated machine tools, in Woburn. Pitchford is a research engineer for the ceramic industries, and Hyde is a law student.

They enjoyed their visit to Wilmington.

Horse permits granted

Kelly Gallagher, 11, of 160 Pine St., Tewksbury, will soon have her own horse. The Tewksbury Board of Health granted a permit for ownership to her parents Monday evening.

Her permit was one of two granted, the other being for the Berube property on James Street.

The granting of permits for animals in Tewksbury will shortly come under a different set of regulations. The Board of Health for some time has been discussing new Rules and Regulations, in accordance with Chapter III, Section 31, of the General Laws.

In the future no horse permits will be granted for any area with less than one acre. Permits will also be needed for the keeping of cows, goats, swine, roosters, ducks, turkeys, chickens, fowl, pigeons and rabbits.

Permits issued prior to May 1, 1987 will be exempt from the regulations as they are now being prepared.

THANK YOU

The Special Needs children and staff would like to thank the following people who helped make Summer Camp at Forty Acres extra special this year:

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McCowan have again generously opened their pool and home to our special needs kids all summer. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Spinelli were kind enough to allow the camp to use their new pool on some very hot days. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and family, representing the Sons of Italy provided two cookouts as well as hosting our awards banquet.

The Wilmington Maintenance Department provided gifts and a MEGA cookout for our final overnight. Mr. Charles Gilbert and the Camp Forty Acres Board of Directors have been very supportive and cared for our physical needs at camp. The Recreation Department has also been instrumental in making our summer a success. Mr. Robert Palmer's Public Works Dept. has made our summer safe and comfortable by spraying for bugs as well a surprising us with a load of sand to give us Wilmington's largest sand pile for our tiny tot campers to play in.

Finally, and most importantly, our summer would not have gotten off the ground if not for the Special Needs PAC. Their financial support cannot be replaced and camp wound not be "Camp" without this group's support.

Again, thank you Town of Wilmington for year number 17.

Kids and Staff of Camp Forty Acres

WATER RESTRICTION NOTICE

As a reminder to the water users of the Town of Wilmington, the outside water use restrictions are still in force on the odd and even basis.

The July rainfall of .73 inches was of no recharge value to our water supply and in fact has reduced the wells ability to produce at full capacity.

Your continued cooperation and observance of the outside restrictions will assure adequate water pressure for everyone and prevent the reinstating of the total water use ban.

Magician weaves spell at Wilmington library

by Arlene Surprenant

Coins plucked out of thin air. Elmer the cooing dove. Peter the fraidy cat rabbit. The handkerchief that never was. All were part of the 50 minute magic show performed at the Wilmington Memorial Library last week.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons, a houseful of attentive youngsters sat in awe as the Great Kallini wove his spell. The mustached marvel of magic captured his audience with a succession of technically perfect tricks, some non-stop patter, and colorful props including scarves, flowers, oversized glasses, and magic wands.

Using the magic word "reading" and a series of eager audience assistants, Kallini performed such feats as the disappearing knot trick, alphabet abracadabra, suspended princess trick, and the egg laid by the wooden chicken phenomenum. Assistant David D'Archangelo played snappy background music ranging from Star Wars to circus tunes as Kallini at one point changed into his clown wig and red nose. The show was sprinkled with plugs on the benefits of reading and using the library.

When he's not performing, the Great Kallini, alias George Tsoukalas, is a chemistry teacher in the Billerica school system.Tsoukalas says he has been performing part time for 29 years at company and birthday parties, banquets, libraries, and community functions. He claims he got his first taste of the mysteries of magic at the tender age of 10 and, two years later, gave his first paid perfomance at the Chelmsford Children's Library. Tsoukalas explains he uses alot of visuals and props that fall apart because kids like "anything exaggerated."

Ask any of the youngsters at the performance, like Jennifer Grasso and Melissa Hawley, and they'll tell you they loved the whole show. Tiny Amy VonKahle, though, went a step further and said she especially liked "the pretty bird."

The magic show was part of the Magical Summer program sponsored by the Wilmington Memorial Library and the reading department of Wilmington Public Schools. It was paid for with a grant from the Wilmington Council for the Arts.

The Magical Summer program comes to an end the last week in August, according to Children's Librarian Sarah Reuter, who told the Town Crier she was "very very pleased" with resident participation.

Elementary age children can still sign up for the program, which will include some special activities when school resumes in the fall. The last special activity will be the regular movie feature on August 25, during which time prizes will be awarded and the winner of the Bean Guessing Contest will be announced.

Tewksbury honey wagons may have no place to go

The town of Tewksbury will soon be looking for a place to dispose of septic system wastes, or septage, beginning on September 1 and the Board of Health will be asking permission to use the Wimington septage facility off Route 38 on at least a temporary basis. A letter has been sent to the Wilmington water and sewer commissioners requesting a meeting.

Tewksbury will be shut off from the use of the Greater Lawrence Sanitary District as of September 1. The district's plant in North Andover will be used after that date by only the five communities which make up the district.

Numerous complaints about odor from the plant were received by the district from North Andover residents. The sanitary district is hiring an air quality testing company to perform tests in the latter part of August, under the present conditions, before service to other towns is suspended.

The Greater Lawrence district is unable to say whether or not it will be able to resume taking septage from communities which are not a part of the district. The decision will depend on the results of the testing, and will have to wait until those tests have been evaluated.

Tewksbury Director of Public Health Bill McMenimen told the Board of Health that he understood there were 70 or 80 communities using the North Andover facility, which will be losing revenues of $700,000 a year by shutting out the other communities.

"They seem to think they can resolve the odor problem," he said.

The Duck Island sewage facility in Lowell is unavailable to take the Tewksbury residue because of odor problems which developed after the plant started disposing of septage.

Tewksbury was using the Duck Island plant, and was, town health officials believe, one of several communities which contributed to the construction costs of the facility. It was to be a multi-community facility and was the recipient of federal construction funds.

The pumping out of Tewksbury's septic systems generates about 60,000 gallons of septage a month, McMenimen said.

WILMINGTON RESIDENTS
HELP!

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 18, 1987, the Wilmington Board of Appeals is having a meeting to consider its current agenda. On that agenda is the proposed 192 condominium units to be built by the development firm IMG on a site located between Ballardvale Street and Arlene Avenue in North Wilmington. At that meeting, the Board of Appeals is expected to render a positive decision allowing IMG to build.

IF THEY DO APPROVE THIS PROJECT, THEN ALL RESIDENTS OF WILMINGTON CAN EXPECT:

Increased density in Wilmington to unprecedented levels - anywhere from 12 to 20 condominium/ apartment units per acre

Every available piece of land in Wilmington to be developed with this high density as developers make a lot more money and will propose nothing less. Single family home development may become a thing of the past.

Greatly increased traffic
Greatly increased taxes
A further strain on our already overloaded water system
A further strain on our already overloaded police department
A further strain on our already overloaded fire department
A further strain on our already overloaded highway department.
A further strain on our already overloaded school department
A disruption of our delicately balanced wetlands and conservation lands resulting in more flooded basements

If this project is approved, it will have a negative effect on all Wilmington residents. All residents in Wilmington must get involved.

Please act now and call your selectmen and especially your board of appeals members. *Urge them to disapprove the North Wilmington proposal and any similar proposals. If you do not act, then Wilmington is condemned to a form of development it does not want or need and thus the town we have known and loved for so long will cease to exist.

Go to the meeting of the Board of Appeals on August 18, 1987 and don't rely on others to speak or be present for you. Be there!

The County Charter Commission, as established by state legislation, is working on a thorough review of county government. When its work is completed, the commission must bring its recommendations before the voters for their approval, at the November 1988 election. And, though still in its early stages of work, a number of preliminary votes have been taken by commission members, which if followed up could make for some well needed reforms in Middlesex County.

There are 15 elected members of the charter commission, representing the 54 cities and towns in Middlesex. The three county commissioners are also members, as is the chairman of the county advisory board. Together, the membership is charged with reviewing the county charter, and recommending to the electorate any needed changes.

State Representative Richard Tisei (R-Wakefield) is a charter commission member, who questions the efficiency of county government. Tisei says that, "Many county employees perform services that the taxpayers don't benefit from directly."

The State Rep. from Wakefield made headlines in June when he released the results of a survey he conducted in his charter commission district, as to how voters regarded the county. With 1,400 respondents, 89% favored abolishing the county government as opposed to modernizing it. And, 90% said they felt they did not benefit directly form county services.

After the publication of the survey, Tisei went head to head with county dog officer Paul Meaney of Woburn, who is also an elected member of the charter commission. In a letter accompanying the survey, Tisei shared with his constituents his criticism of the County K-9 Division, which Meaney heads. Tisei maintains that the K-9 Division should be looked at by the charter commission, whereas legislation passed on Beacon Hill last year allows towns to pull out of the county K-9 service. Since then, 9 towns in the county have withdrawn, and Tisei says, "Because towns were pulling out, I felt it appropriate to look at that."

In an interview with the Town Crier, Meaney countered by saying, "I know 35 or 40 cities and towns that will not leave the K-9 Division, and that are happy with what they pay for." Meaney went on to point out that the county has done a poor job on public relations, but that the charter commission believes the county can be made more effective by dealing with issues of waste disposal and central purchasing for municipalities.

Some recent votes taken by the charter commission indicate the direction they may be headed in. In a 7-6 preliminary vote, they approved the concept of having anywhere from 9 to 15 county commissioners elected from districts, as opposed to the present 3 elected at large. These district commissioners would have a 2 year term. Furthermore, the charter commission took yet another preliminary vote, in favor of an elected chief executive for the county.

Wilmington Selectman Bob Cain was one of the fifteen members elected to the charter commission last November, and represents Burlington, North Reading, Reading, Tewksbury, and Wilmington. Though Cain was at one time a proponent of abolishing county government, he does not feel that way today. Cain points out that the assessment Wilmington contributes to the Middlesex County coffers did not increase last year, and that two years ago actually decreased by $60,000. Cain added that this decrease gave the town needed monies for the renovation of the senior citizen center at the Buzzell School, taking place at that time.

Selectman Cain favors district commissioners in the county, but believes the chief executive should be appointed, saying, "We can appoint qualified people, without electing them." Cain refered to the expertise of the present county treasurer and sheriff, both of whom were appointed, because of sudden vacancies in those positions.

Of all the members on the charter commission, Tisei would appear to be most in favor of abolishing county government. And though his sentiments may not be shared by the majority, the state may well do the next best thing. A bill in the House of Representatives would take away most of county governments' bite through the take-over of county jails, courts, and registries of deeds. The bill is presently in third reading, and is sponsored by House Ways and Means Chairman Richard Voke.

25 years ago

The August 16 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

There would be no quick decisions by the Board of Selectmen relative to new gas stations in Wilmington, Chairman John Brooks told Atty. Warren Killan of Reading, executive of the estate of Mrs. Adele Williams. Opposite Avco on Lowell Street, a gas firm was seeking to buy a place through A & M Fenton.

Sgt. John Imbimbo told the Board of Selectmen that the town was not ready for a pedestrian law which would control pedestrians within 300 feet of a crosswalk. He also told the board that the Burlington Avenue bridge was to be posted for 16 ton loads as is the Shawsheen Avenue bridge. He lamented the fact that all the bridges in Wilmington "are inadequate for resent day tonnages."

In the absence of a full board onday night, selectmen voted to ntinue the contract of Town anager Cecil Lancaster until such me as a full board convened, robably in September.

A $20,000 bond was set by the planning board for the new Hathaway Acres Assoc. The bond would guarantee the cost of streets, etc. in the new development.

Nine classes of fourth, fifth and sixth graders would be studying in the new North School when it opens in September. All nine would be on the second flood.

A petition for the acceptance of School Street, Drury Lane, etc. on Pine Hill was given to the board of selectmen Monday night. It will probably appear as a warrant article in a future town meeting.

Thomas Pilcher, formerly of Wilmington and a well known WHS athlete was promoted to sales administrator in marketing for the Santa Barbara, Calif., plant of Raytheon.

Wilmington Little League issued a challenge to the ladies of the Bikinis and Twisters ball teams to play the Minor League All Stars on with Charles Nickerson manager and Joe Zingelowski as coach.

John Rees of Andover Street was drawn Monday night at the selectmen's meeting for Cambridge jury pool to start on September 12 for one month.

Pictured was the interior of the Forest Congregational Church (St. Elizabeth's) after being completely refurbished at a cost of $1500.

The Humble Farmer

The case for identity

"I'm trying to find out who I am."

Perhaps you've heard a malingering young scholar use that as an excuse to drop out of college and spend a year in Key West. Less fortunate young folks might use the same excuse to stop working and start attending a community college. It's a phrase often employed by those afflicted with galloping middle age to justify divorce, and soon after, another marriage.

Trying to find out who you are is the product of a dynamic society and has therefore been diagnosed as an urban disease. Those of us who live in unassuming backwater communities aren't aware that we're supposed to be somebody. Most of us have always been there and we haven't thought about going anywhere where being somebody is necessary.

Some folks might think that we lack the ambition to move away and get ahead in the world. Others have dryly observed that only the weak of mind and body move to the city where survival is a simple matter of running banks or computers.

However you want to argue, we do realize our ambitions within sight of where we were born and, after 10 or 12 generations on the same piece of ground, a well-adjusted native starts to fel right at home. Whenever we turn up an ancient, crusted ox shoe during spring plowing, we take it for granted that the shoe was lost by great-great-grandfather's ox. Or perhaps it was His great-great-grandfather's ox.

Which is why practically no one around here spends too much time running around trying to find himself or wondering who he is. Usually, if you are too young to know, someone will quickly tell you.

For example, Michael, Gramp Wiley's great-grandson, and a playmate stopped in at the Wiley trailer for dinner this noon. "Who is the other boy's father?" I asked Gladys -- not that I couldn't pretty well tell by looking.

When she told me, I knew as much as there is to know, in a community like this one, about who he was. My thought process, which I believe to be typical of nay middle-aged man with the aforementioned background, ran something along the order of this.

He's a descendent of Dr. Moses Robinson by way of Samuel Gilchrest. His great - great - great - great - grandfather was my great - grandfather's cousin, Captain Albion, who reputedly reached down into the hold of his ship and pulled out his German wife-to-be by the hair. Albion's brother Larkin dragged the house I live in from the back road up to where it stands today. They must have spent hours in my kitchen with their feet up on my ancient Wood and Bishop stove. Gramp's great - grandfather, Isiah, who built the house next door, was another brother. Gramp, my fourth cousin, would be a fourth cousin to tthe kid' grandmother. I still have a birthday card I got from his great - great - great - grandmother.

His great - great - grandmother always called me "Son" - probably because my grandfather married her sister - in - law, and gave me apple pie when I was a kid. You want a kid to remember you when he's old, give him milk and apple pie. They say she was there tending out on mother when I was born -- slapped me a good one and saved me from choking to death. I used to buy nails and boards from his great-grandfather -- kept his money in a canvas bag with a drawstring. Put a 1945 six pound hearing aid with dangling wires in the kid's pocket and let him leak a bit of chewing tobacco out of the corners of his mouth and you couldn't tell 'em apart. Doesn't seem that long ago that this kid's father was 10 and running up and down the road on an Allis Chalmers tractor. Must be three years now since I calfed him to put out my chimney fire. How time flies.

So even though I'd never seen the kid bfore I knew him fairly well. If he ever drives rocks at my henhouse windows I'll try to think of the hundreds of pieces of apple pie his great - great - grandmother gave me.

Being a simple man, knowing how I'm related to all of my immediate neighbors is all the comfort I need -- I'm able to let it go at that.

But then there are folks who aren't satisfied until they've dragged in more and more obscure ancestors and relations until the whole thing has to be computerized and printed as a book.

If you've seen Bradley Beckett's "Settlers and Soldiers of Cushing, Maine Before 1760 and Their Descendants Today," you know exactly what I'm talking about. If you don't have a copy, run over to Fales' store in Cushing and get one. I haen't met a native yet who could sleep without reading all of it.

Knowing my background, imagine how it feels to suddenly have dozens - yea, hundreds of new relatives dumped in your lap. Especially when you've known most of them for years. Foremost among the delights was the knowledge that I'm fourth cousin to Phillip Young. And a fourth cousin to Alton Grover's father. And a fourth cousin to Alan Ames' good old Grammie Coombs.

I'm fourth cousin to Stanley Stone's grandfather (two ways). And a fourth cousin to Sid Orne's maternal grandmother and a fourth cousin to his father.

All of which I digested rather readily. But then I read that I'm a fourth cousin to Melinda Robinson Smith, a fourth cousin to her father, Barney, also a fourth cousin to Barney's father Joe and, by three different lines, a fourth cousin to Joe's wife Carolina -- named for her great -- grandmother who Captain Albion pulled out of the ship by the hair. At which point I paused and reflected.

Social intercourse and commerce in this county have been put on hold as natives prepare to study and then memorize Bradkey Beckett's social register of Cushing. After all, if your folks have lived her for 250 years, it's next to impossible to relate to your neighbors unless you know exactly who you are and how you fit in.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Small cities seen hurt by exodus of the young, was the headline of a recent story in the Boston Globe (August 11, 1987). Certainly this could apply to Wilmington.

This past weekend I talked to a long time resident of Wilmington (40 years) as she pushed her granddaughter in a carriage. "My son just had to move to Dracut," she told me "he couldn't find a place to live. I will miss these walks with the baby. He was renting a house around the corner from me but the rent was so high and then they sold the house. He bought a condo in Dracut."

Then the yard sale that a widow had (also a 40 year resident of Wilmington). "Anne, I was real sorry that the development you represented off Andover Street didn't go through. I was going to buy one. I just can't keep up this house anymore, the yard and everything. I had to move from Wilmington, but what am I to do? I just bought a nice condo in Peabody, it is very nice and I feel secure."

And so it goes, young people who have grown up in Wilmington denied the right to live in their own "home town" because Mr. Miceli and Mr. Gillis have shot down every responsible PRD (Planned Residential Development) in Wilmington. And the sad part is that they do it in the name of "saving Wilmington."

Now we are faced with the high density "comprehensive planning" development and threat of a sludge plant.

Article, after article refers to "greedy" landowners ... but conveniently it is left out that Mr. Chisholm offers to sell his land to the town five years ago...not interested. And the most important fact Wilmington has had the opportunity to offer "affordable housing" to our young people since 1979 and we have only built four (4) units ... and they are not complete and running into trouble. We need three hundred and seventy (370).

No, this is not an endorsement for irresponsible high density, "comprehensive permits." This does not meet the needs of the community in a responsible way, but, Wimington may hae run out of time to meet her share of the needs of the young people and widows of this community. Affordable housing has been shot down time after time with the false cries "we don't want those people, keep out the projects," it will ruin the town and the almighty, "the traffic, the traffic."

Our planning board worked diligently on a responsible planned residential development bylaw, over and over again we have heard young people plead for an opportunity to stay in Wilmington, let their children attend the same public schools they did, and to afford their families with adequate housing. Over and over again the duo of Miceli and Gillis has heartlessly cut down every responsible proposal presented to the town.

"Let them move to Tewksbury if they want a condo," Mr. Miceli has stated to me when presented with this situation.

Sound familiar, remember "let them eat cake"...does history repeat itself...you tell me and just who are the greedy?

sincerely,
A. Linehan

Dear Larz:

First, I have never written a letter to the editor and I hope I never have reason to do so again, but I can't let what is about to happen to our town to go by without commenting on it. The subject is the proposed development of approximately 200 units in North Wilmington. From all reports, this development by IMG will be approved by the Wilmington Board of Appeals (BOA) at its meeting on 18 August 1987. I would like to express my concerns regarding this development.

The first meeting concerning this development was with a representative of the DEQE. Information was provided by the Water and Sewer Commission, the State Highway Department and our Conservation Commission. It was determined after this meeting that an Environmental Impact Report *(EIR) would have to be done prior to development. This EIR has yet to be done and therefore very little information is available to determine the increase in traffic, the amount of available land which oculd be developed due to wetlands, etc. Without this information, how can our BOA consider this develpment?

Information was requested and submitted to the BOA from various department heads within the town. The Water Department indicates it cannot guarantee the water pressure to supply the requirements for this complex. The Sewer Commission says that it cannot hook into the existing sewer line on Salem Street as is proposed. The conservation issue has not been addressed. The traffic, impact on schools, fire department, police department, etc., have not been addressed. I was at the meetings. I heard the information presented. Has our BOA been listening? If so, how can the BOA consider granting this comprehensive permit?

Does it seem logical that we leave a decision of this magnitude in the hands of three non-elected officials who appear to ignore the information provided to them by other officials and the townspeople?

Very truly yours,
E.F. Gottlander

Kelly Hill hearing

Board of Appeals Chairman Bruce MacDonald makes a point, apparently to Steve Lawrenson (not visible) during the official map hearing. Michael and Mary Law are at the end of the hearing table and beyond them Bill Hooper of the Wilmington Planning Board appears to be resting, as he listens to the arguments.

No easy answers in official map hearing

Kelly Hill is the one with the standpipe, in the center of Wimington. It was probably named for Jim Kelly, town clerk of Wilmington nearly a century ago, or else for some other Son of Erin.

The hill, a drumlin, has a nice slope to the northwest, and cliffs to the southeast, formed by the glaciers over 10,000 years ago. Millions of tons of ice drifted southeast over what is now New England, and shaped the granolithic hills.

People who live on drumlins do not have too much soil. Frequently there are puddles, water trapped from rock. Particularly that is so on Kelly's Hill, the site of a residential development in 1914 which did not do much to improve the area. In the intervening years a few persons have managed to erect homes, but there are still unconstructed streets, which have to go through a Board of Appeals hearing before they can be built, because Wilmington has an Official Map law.

Steve Lawrenson, a Wilmington builder, found an opportunity to erect a home on Kelly's Hill. First he had to have a Board of Appeals hearing, to have his proposals approved.

Lawrenson appeared before the Board of Appeals on August 11. That board is chaired by Bruce MacDonald. He has held that office for some years. He knows what he is doing, and is an excellent no-nonsense chairman.

About a dozen neighbors were present, when the hearing started. Their problem was water -- drainage. Some had pictures of their problems, dating back several years.

Michael and Mary Law were one couple with pictures. The pictures were pasted together, end to end, to show how big the problem is. The pictures were several years old.

Bill Dineen "reiterated" their story. He had pictures of what he called "duck ponds." He had a lot to say, too.

MacDonald asked them if they had been down to see the head of the Department of Public Works, to have the situation corrected. There were a lot of remarks about it did no good to see that man.

The only way you'll get things done, said MacDonald, "is to get together and file a petition with the selectmen and the DPW."

The crowd was still vociferous. There were many problems they had inherited. Someone pointed out that there was a water tower. "You can't water the lawn, and water pours from the top of that tower. I call up the water department, and it doesn't stop!"

From some of the remarks that were being made Lawrenson saw an opportunity to have a different street, to construct. He talked of that.

Dineen objected. "There's going to be a river, and it is going to flood out our property!"

MacDonald: "There are town departments here, to protect you."

Dineen: "You go to see them, and they say 'It's not our jurisdiction'"

Several persons spoke of getting "a run-around" in the town hall. That, it can be remarked, was an unconscious humor considering that Wilmington has a round town hall.

Another spoke of "high paid town employees." He included the members of the Board of Appeals in his remarks.

Joe McMenimen, appeals board member, had a few words to say. The members of the board of appeals, he said, are not "highly paid employees." They do not work for the town, and they are not paid. Their task is solely to be the judges, in such cases as the one they were hearing.

Chairman MacDonald suggested that the case be continued for two weeks. That would give Mr. Lawrenson an opportunity to "meet with you people."

McMenimen suggested that the should "work it out with Mr. Palmer (head of the DPW) and your engineer." Lawrenson did not think anyone could get an engineer in less than two weeks. However, he said, "let's look and see."

Another 10 minutes were spent in remarks by individuals about their scheduled vacations, and how they would be unable to be a part of the discussion. It was 10 minutes past nine when the group finally accepted the suggestion of Chairman MacDonald.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

PUTTING MONEY INTO AN IRA?

The greatest advantage to an IRA, according to many employees who opened them in the past, was the immediate tax deduction they offered. Every dollar stashed away was at least partly funded by Uncle Sam. The new law limits who can deduct how much.

If you or your spouse are not covered by a company pension or other retirement program, you can still deduct your IRA contribution. If either of you are covered your joint income is under $40,000 ($25,000 for singles), the IRA's still deductible. In between those limits, contributions are partly deductible. Filing separately may be worthwhile.

Is a non-deductible IRA worthwhile? In many cases, yes. It's still an opportunity to defer taxes on what your money earns. Over the long haul, the difference is considerable. However, the penalties for premature withdrawal are high. If you're going to need the cash, find a less restrictive investment.

BUNIONS WHAT CAN BE DONE?

A bunion is a painful aggravating bump along the inside of the big toe joint and is usually associated with a crooked toe. The problem is "structural" in nature and can be corrected. Some recent technology and many years of research by Foot-Specialists-Podiatrists, have given us procedures and methods that result in excellent relief and long term correction.

Corrective procedures range from simple removal of the bump and realignment of the big toe, to more sophisticated procedures involving the realignment of bony structures. These procedures aim for long term correction, minimal post-operative discomfort and early recovery.

These procedures are done under local anesthesia on an out-patient basis in either the office or hospital.

If you have any questions about a bunion problem that you might have, please feel free to call and talk with one of our doctors. We look foward to serving you.

Hunting for new owner

Life at the dog pound is kind of lonely for this German short-haired pointer. He's the sort of dog who belongs in a field, hunting, not in a cage. He was picked up on Aug. 5 on Concord Street. The dog officer may be reached by calling 658-7845.

Wilmington senior topics

Air conditioning

The air-conditioning has been completely installed in the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center. It is wonderful -- we did not mind the very warm days we had last week. The seniors are returning to join seniors in programs at the center.

Those in the exercise class were put through two hours of exercises to strengthen their hearts, improve theri breathing or overcome pains and stiffness from arthritis. Leaving the building they looked refreshed after the class rather than drawn from the heat as they had been before we got the air conditioning. The seniors also enjoyed playing whist, bridge, beano, cards, socializing in the kitchen, ceramics and working in the craft room. If you were a senior who did not come because the building was too hot, now is the time to leave your air conditioned homes and join in the programs at the Center. It will be good for you.

Olympic games

Congratulations are extended to the Wilmington seniors who received winner ribbons in the Olympic Games held at the Tewksbury State Hospital last Thursday. The chairman of the Council on Aging, Lillian Brown and Mrs. Cunningham attended the games to give encouragement to seniors participating. It made me a little ashamed to watch these disabled persons putting all the strength they could muster to win the ribbon.

How little wa appreciate our good health. Health that allows us to enjoy life to the fullest, going where we want to go. It would be nice if we took a little of our free time and visited with our seniors disabled in their homes, nursing homes like Tewksbury State Hospital or the Blair House and those in hospitals in our area. How happy you would make these seniors. Watching those seniors competing made me feel good that Lillian and I were there to share in their happiness.

Nurse

The nurse will be at the Center next Thursday, August 20 to take blood pressures and give the diabetes test starting at 1:30 p.m.

Sugar level very important

We cannot stress enough how important it is to have your sugar level checked by taking a diabetes test, given by Abbie the third Thursday of the month. Diabetes is a very sneaky illness. Many times it will give no sign that it is becoming active in our bodies. It can be detected very early if we have Abbie give us a very simple blood test. If it is detected early enough it can be treated very easily. If not it can become a very serious illness. It is not necessary to have a test every month, but if you have not had one for a long time, it is time for another. It is better to be safe than sorry.

August social

Signups are in progress for the August therapeutic social. You will hae to sign up thsi week if you wish to attend. The buffet luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. Hamburgers will be available also in the afternoon. Music will be provided for dancing. It should be a nice afternoon, as it will be held at the Senior Citizen center. If it is a nice day it will be held in the parking lot, if not we will move into our beautiful air conditioned building. A $2 non-refundable deposit will be required when signing up.

Concom had a busy night

by Arlene Surprenant

Busy Conservation Commission members held three Wetland Protection Act hearings and two Determinations at their meeting last Wednesday.

Members asked Fred Hamwey, civil engineer for 14 Jewell Drive Realty Trust, to come back in two weeks for their decision at a continued hearing. This, they felt, would give them a chance to walk the site and allow the board of appeals to make a decision on a request for a special parking variance.

Proponents plan to construct a 20,160 square foot commercial building on a nine acre site on Jewell Drive. They hope to place it on top of an existing parking lot. Presently, there is a warehouse and a parking area on the property. Hamwey said they will fill wetlands and compensate for disturbing those areas and runoff will be increased.

At another hearing, members were concerned with runoff and animal wastes from a barn on Mystic Avenue going into wetlands. Owner Carol Wood plans to construct a barn and dwelling addition which will necessitate work in a buffer zone.

Members said the owner may need to put in a cement floor with planks and a catch basin plus stockpile animal wastes several feet from a drain to be in compliance. Engineer Erich Nitzsche said he thought the owner was going to put in a wooden floor.

The third hearing was on a request by Northeast Development Corp. to work in a buffer zone on Fairview Avenue to allow for the construction of a single family dwelling. Nitzsche said the proponents plan on erecting an erosion fence. There will be no filling of wetlands, no compensation, and no increase in runoff, he added.

Carl Nelson of Olin Chemical Corp. was asked to attend the meeting to explain what is happening with a wetland area and water on the back of the property on Eames Street. Members said they had some concern about altering wetlands as Olin continues to close out its Wilmington plant. Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian said the closure plan would help the site because it might bring back vegetation.

Nelson told members all materials from two ponds has been emptied and transported and Olin has started to fill them in. Olin also plans to remove the dirt road going to the B &M railroad and restore it back to a grass area, he said. The board made a negative determination so Olin does not have to file a Notice of Intent.

Because of the wording in the Order of Conditions on the 27 lot subdivision known as Bedell Estates, Nitzsche filed a determination on behalf of Ronald Vigliotti. Members felt it was not necessary to do this or come back to the board on the remaining lots if Nitzsche would let the board know if the developer is exceeding the runoff count or invading the wetlands.

"The onus is going to be on you," Chairman Chester Bruce told Nitzsche, explaining the commission's job is to protect the wetlands.

Devil's Den

Devil's Den is a small cave located on the west side of Andover Street in Wilmington, about 2,000 feet northerly of the Harnden Tavern. The cave was formed during the last glacial ice age, when ice froze to the side of the hill, and removed loose rock. It is reputed to be the hiding place of Captain Kidd's gold.

Tale of pirate gold at Devil's Den

©Copyright 1987
by Capt. Larz Neilson

Whence came the story of pirate's gold in Wilmington? Wilmington is possibly the only town in Massachusetts without a seacoast in which it is legal to hunt for pirate's gold. The story dates back into the 1700s.

According to the old story Capt. Kidd, who was hung in London for alleged piracy, about 1705, went north on the Andover Road about 1696, with a heavily loaded cart, and a black servant. He was supposed to have been seen from a Harnden House, by the children. That house would presumably be the house of Richard and Mary Harnden, constructed about 1665. It was located in what is now North Wilmington, but at that time was a part of the Town of Reading.

The children saw him return that afternoon, with no load in the cart, and the black man was not with him.

That story is supposed to have happened, but there are problems. The first is that Capt. Kidd was not well known, nor was he a notorious pirate, before the beginning of the 18th century. He was, to all intents, an unknown person, especially to some family who lived inland from Boston.

But, after the execution in London Capt. Kidd became well known. Stories were printed about him. The English speaking world knew of him. Possibly the stories were in other languages too.

That points to some person making up a story. That person could have been Mary Jaquith Harnden.

According to the records Mary was born in Woburn Sept. 1, 1706. She was really born in Billerica. There was a question about the boundary between the two towns, but, where she was born became a part of Wilmington in 1735 or shortly thereafter.

Mary was descended from a Huguenot family. Her great- grandfather had lived in Charlestown. Her grandfather, who was a resident of what is now Wilmington, was wounded during King Philip's War. He was the first setttler in what is now Wilmington to have the dubious distinciton of dying from war wounds.

The Jaquith family owned many acres of land, near Aldrich Road and Forest Street.

Mary married the second John Harnden, grandson of Richard and Mary Harnden.

The first John Harnden was a deacon in the Reading church, in what is now Wakefield. He can be called Deacon John of Reading. It was his first wife and children who were killed in the Harnden Massacre in 1706.

The second John Harnden was deacon of the Wilmington church, and can be called Deacon John of Wilmington. He lived in the home his father had built, after the massacre, "downhill" from the Richard and Mary Harnden home. It was in that home that his son Capt. John lived, a home which was destroyed to make room for the new Interstate 93, about 30 years ago.

The first four children of the family died in 1737, presumably from small pox. Four sons and two daughters were born subsequently, including Capt. John, Colonel Joshua and Lieut. Benjamin. Anothe son, Joseph, died "in the lines" beseiging Boston Dec. 24, 1775.

With four sons and two daughters, a colonial housewife would be a busy person.

But she could have been an imaginative one as well. Capt. Kidd was by that time well known, and Mary Jaquith Harnden may well have told tales to such persons as John, Joseph, Joshua, etc., etc.

Devil's Den was just half a mile to the north of her home.

What was to prevent an imaginative young lady from making up a story about Capt. Kidd, and his burying treasure at Devil's Den?

Nothing, of course, could have prevented it, and it is quite possible that she did originate the story.

If so it was she who also said that, if a person should get near that buried treasure the ghost of the black man would save it, by moving the treasure to another spot.

A good imagination never hurt anyone, particularly Mary Jaquith Harnden.

Children having fun at Lil Red Schoolhouse

Children at the Li'l Red Schoolhouse in Tewksbury Explorer's Program have been having an enjoyable summer learning about New England from the cities to the seashore in the school's summer enrichment program.

It has been a rewarding summer, with learning units that have been enhanced with kits from the Boston Children's Museum, along with weekly field trips to such places as the Lowell Canals and city, Harold Parker State Froest, Essex Agricultural College, and the Andover Historical Societies Barn Museum.

The children are planning on having a real County Fair that they are preparing and presenting to their parents and friends as a way of wrapping up their studies on New England farm life.

The youngsters are looking forward to the month of August with the last session of the summer spent studying the New England seashore. Trips to the beach and the New England Aquarium will help reinforce these learning units.

There are still a few positions available for the third session, about the New England Seashore, running from August 17 through Sept. 4.

Andover Savings annouces second quarter results

Andover Savings Bank is a Massachusetts chartered savings bank organized in 1834 and headquartered in Andover, Massachusetts, approximately 25 miles north of downtown Boston, with branch banking offices in Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover, and Tewksbury, Massachusetts. The bank converted from a mutual institution to a stockholder-owned corporation on May 8, 1986.

Andover Savings Bank recently announced its operating results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1987. Net income for the quarter totalled $2,666,000, or $.53 per common share, representing an increase of 51 percent. Net income included net securities gains of $552,000, before tax effect, in the second quarter of 1987 versus $374,000 in the second quarter of 1986 and a net gain of $147,000 on the sale of mortgage loans in 1987 compared to none for the equivalent quarter in 1986.

Year to date net income for 1987 totalled $5,491,000, or $1.09 per share. Included in net income are gains on the sales securities and loans which amounted to $1,575,000 before taxes for the 1987 period.

The Bank's assets had grown to $592 million at June 30, 1987 and deposits totalled $368 million. The Bank's capital to asset ratio now stands at 17.6 percent.

Commenting on the Bank's operating results for the first half of 1987, Robert M. Henderson, president of Andover Bank, said: "The Bank has responded very well to the economic challenges presented in the second quarter. Despite the upward movement in interest rates in early April which decreased residential loan volume and increased the cost of borrowings, our earnings remain strong. The controlled growth in earning assets in 1987 is the major contributor to the favorable increase in earnings over 1986."

Moylan appointed V.P.

Laurence P. Moylan has been appointed vice president of manufacturing at Avco Systems Textron, Wilmington. In his new position Mr. Moylan will have charge of all manufacturing operations.

Moylan, whose most recent position was director of production planning and control, joined Avco Systems in 1983 bringing with him 32 years of experience in manufacturing. His extensive background was developed at General Electric's Aircraft Gas Turbine Department, Lynn; Armament Systems Department, Burlington, Vt.; and the Aircraft Engine Group, Lynn. Prior to joining Avco, Moylan's most recent position was manager of manufacturing for the Aircraft Instruments Department for General Electric in Wilmington.

Moylan graduated from Boston University in 1951 with a BS in business administration.

He and his wife, Patricia live in Wenham, and are the parents of four sons.

Nantucket whale watch

The Yankee Fleet from Gloucester, Massachusetts and Seafarers Expeditions of Bangor, Maine announce the first Nantucket whale watch.

These specialized day trips offer a new opportunity during a stay on Nantucket, or a way to experience wildlife off the shores of Nantucket Island. These full day trips cruise to the abundant feeding grounds known as Great South Channel, near Nantucket Shoals. This habitat is rich in fish, squid and other invertebrates, making it an important feeding ground for marine mammals and seabirds. Regular sightings of humpback whales, fin whales, and minke whales can be seen here, yet it is also possible to sight grampus whales, pilot whales and species of dolphin.

Experienced naturalists are on board to locate animals and better aquaint passengers with this habitat. They are well trained, with knowledge of this particular area, and marine mammal behavior. These trips offer additional time on the water and all sightings made, add to the growing body of knowledge of marine mammal studies.

Nantucket whale watch cruises are held aboard the 100' M/V Yankee Freedom and 70' Yankee Clipper, owned and operated by The Yankee Fleet, Gloucester, MA.

Expeditions depart Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. from the Hy-Line dock at Straight Wharf, Downtown Nantucket. Trips return approximately 4:30 p.m. Trips are $35 for adults and $18 for children under 12. Reservation are suggested. For more information call 1-800-322-0013.

The 8th annual Waiter & Waitress race

The Waiter & Waitress race to be held August 13, at Pickering Wharf. The race will be amongst restaurants and will be judged on the speed and neatness of each team of waiters & waitresses. A three person team of waiters & waitresses will relay against other teams. The format of the race requires the lead waiter of the team to sprint to and set a table, the next runner will race to the table carrying a can of Schooner Beer and a mug, then open the foaming can and pour it in the mug. The final waiter of the team will sprint to clear the table. Points are awarded for speed and deducted for items dropped or misplaced. Decision of judges will be final.

All participants will recieve a commemorative T-Shirt of the Waiters & Waitresses race and refreshments following the race. Plaques for the top three restaurants and trophies for each participant on the first three teams will be awarded.

Registration is $50 per team. All proceeds will benefit the Cebebral Palsy Foundation. For more information call 593-2727.

AIM Headquarters is located in the 4th of July Headquarters in Middlesex Ave., across the Wilmington Common.

AIM stands for "access is mandatory" and this is a place for the diabled to congregate and make new friends, therefore it can help persons with handicaps from becoming shut-ins. AIM is only a year old and it offers a place for the disabled to enjoy various activities on Saturday nights such as : movies, arts and crafts, bingo, gardening, peer counseling, conversation, music and dancing, and parties; also field trips to the zoo, a picnic, musuems, and shopping.

AIM welcomes all disabled adults age 21 and over. Bring along your ideas and suggestions for more fun activities. AIM also welcomes volunteers who can teach subjects of interest to members; also welcome are persons who might be interested in serving on the Wilmington Committee of Citizens with Disabilities, Inc. This committee works on advocacy and issues directed toward a more independent and equal life for the disabled.

For more information about our programs, contact Carol at 658-5436.

The Beach Boys concert in Lowell

Cafferty's Concerts announces that after several months of negotiations, The Beach Boys have chosen Lowell's Cawley Memorial Stadium as the site of their biggest concert of the year. Joining them on their Labor Day afternoon show, which will have segments broadcasting live back to the Jerry Lewis telethon in Las Vegas, will be Michael McDonald, John Cafferty and The Beaver Brown Band, and The Stompers. Tickets are available at all tickertron locations and Strawberries Stores.

Summer tips for kids

Summer's almost over and the kids are getting bored. Horizons For Youth offers the following creative and interesting activities adults can do with youngsters to relieve summer doldrums.

Make a map of your backyard or local park, and distinguish the natural things from those that are man-made.

Make a "natural" masterpiece by placing a piece of paper against the bark of the tree. Rub a crayon on the paper for a unique bark rubbing. Rub grass, flowers or plants on the paper to add color for an original work of art.

A simple, fun thing to do is hunt for four-leaf clovers. It's belived they bring good luck!

Attract birds to your outdoor space by making a bird feeder. First, find a pinecone and tie a string around it so it can be hung. Then smear the pinecone with peanut butter. Hang it up and watch the birds have a feast!

Grow a "Garbage" garden. Save those carrot tops, potato eyes, citurs and apple seeds, avocado pits, ect. Plant them in containers, water and watch them grow. Later, you can transplant them into the ground if you wish.

On the next sunny day, try "shadowing" with a partner. Cast your shadow on the pavement and have a friend draw around the outline with some chalk. Repeat in other spots with shadows of all kinds of things.

At nightime go to a very dark place outside. Listen to all the different night sounds that you hear, and try to identify as many as you can.

All living creatures need food and shelter. Select a bird or animal that lives in your backyard or local park, and see if you can identify the means for its survival.

Horizons for youth is a non-prophit organization that provides outdoor education and camping programs for needy, disadvantaged and other youngsters. Since it was founded in 1938, Horizons For Youth has helped over 80,000 Massachusetts boys and girls through carefully-constructed outdoor activities designed to foster self-esteem and confidence. For more informaiton call 828-7550.

Charlie Simmer Hockey School August 17-21

If it's summer it must be hockey season

Summer hockey clinic

The Charlie Simmer Hockey School is in high gear August 10-14 and August 17-21 at the Ristuccia Exposition Center in Wilmington. Clockwise, the youngsters six through nine years old stretch out prior to the clinic; then are put through some sprints by the clinic staff; WHS hockey coach Bill Cullen, Bruins' star Simmer and rink committee chairman Al Reidy confer; and finally the youngsters are instructed in the fine art of stickhandling. There will also be a figure skating clinic at the center August 19. So what if it's summer. Wilmington loves hockey.

Beach trip

Due to the overwhelming success of the teen trips to Hampton Beach, the Recreation Department has added another trip on Tuesday, August 18. This will be our last trip of the season.

These trips are open to youngsters in grades seven through 12; families are welcome; children under 13 must be chaperoned.

Register in person at the town hall, Glen Road Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

For more information, call the Rec office at 658-4270.

Race to benefit Special Olympics

The fifth anniversary High Tech 10K Classic is set for Sunday, September 13 at 10 a.m. at the Stouffer Bedford Glen Hotel in Bedford.

Since its' inception, the High Tech 10K Classic has proven to be a very well organized, efficiently run event. This being the fifth anniversary will mark a bigger, better and very special race in 1987.

The race was designed to benefit the Massachusetts Special Olympics and to fund high tech scholarships for high school students from Bedford, Billerica, and Burlington.

Originally created and sponsored by the Massachusetts High Technology Council, Inc. and Stouffer Bedford Glen Hotel, the race has been joined by Welch's Food and American Airlines to allow the successful growth to continue.

The associate sponsorship program allows many Massachusetts High Technology Council members and other businesses to contribute a cash donation or product. This along with 7000 runners participating has allowed a sizeable cash donation of over $50,000 to be made to the Special Olympics and high tech scholarship fund.

Many outstanding prizes are awarded to top runners, including the winning male and female plus runner-up receiving Hewlett-Packard and Data General personal computers. Stouffer Bedford Glen Hotel offers many overnight stays for top finishers in 11 divisions.

Raffles are held with prizes ranging from trips, dinners, VCRs and grand prizes of a trip for two to St. Thomas, Orlando, and Los Angeles via American Airlines.

All this guarantees a top field of runners to join the many Special Olympians who compete in the race. Greg Meyer, past Boston marathon champion and 10K classic winner the previous three races, will be back to defend his title, as will Lesley and Lisa Welch, twin sisters who completed a twin tie for first place by finishing together in record time last year.

Among the many runners and observers who have taken part in the road race/awards ceremony include Howard P. Foley, president Massachusetts High Technology council, Inc.; Raymond Flynn, mayor of Boston; Ken Hodge, executive director of Massachusetts Special Olympics; William Hulett, president of Stouffer Hotels and Everett Baldwin, president Welch Foods.

All this for the purpose of having some fun, while generating significant funds for the Massachusetts Special Olympics and scholarships for students pursuing a career in the high tech field.

Sports deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

All-Star popup

This Tewksbury Little League All-Star takes a long look at his high popup in tournament competition against Andover.

Tough to watch

Tewksbury Senior League All-Star manager Rick O'Neil (arms folded) watches his District 14 champs finally go down to defeat, losing to Swampscott 14-1 in tournament play. O'Neil and his squad enjoyed a superb tourney.

Tennis tourney

Time is running out for area players who want to enter what promises to be one of this summer's top tennis tournaments that also serves a fine cause.

The Sixth Annual Samaritan Open Tennis Tournament will be held at the Andover High School courts on Shawsheen Road, August 28, 29 and 30.

The tournament is open to the general public and will benefit the Samaritans, the 24-hour suicide prevention and befrending service for the Merrimack Valley and Southern New Hampshire.

Entry forms are available at local sporting goods stores and tennis clubs.

For more information, call the Samaritans at one of the following numbers: Lawrence, 688-6607; Lowell, 452-6733; Haverhill, 373-7200; Newburyport, 465-6100.; tournament director Joe Ruggieri, 686-5013.

Singles entry fee is $17; doubles fee, $20. If playing in both events, the cost is $25. It is tax deductible. Yellow Pen balls and refreshments will be provided. There will be trophies and prizes for the winners.

WHS physicals

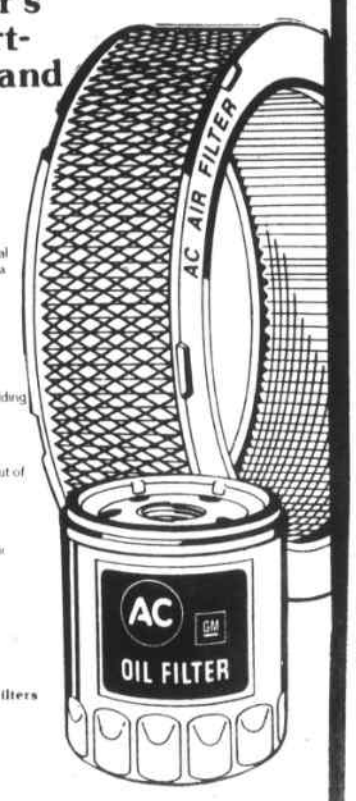

All candidates for the Wilmington High School fall athletic program will report for physicals to Wilmington High School Sunday, August 30. Boys at 9 a.m. and girls at 10:30.

Deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

KEEP IT CLEAN

Protect your car's engine with dirt-trapping AC Oil and Air Filters.

- AC Oil Filters — Built with polyester reinforced filtering material that stands up to the higher engine oil temperatures and pressures of today's cars.
- AC Air Filters — Designed to include an oil wetted resin impregnated filtering media to increase dirt holding capacity.
- Install both at the same time to help keep dirt out of your engine.
- AC Oil and Air Filters fit practically all domestic cars, light trucks, and imports.

There was a real logjam at homeplate in this recent Tewksbury Little League All-Star Tournament contest won by Andover, by the way, the runner was safe.

Outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

Last week in this spot I discussed the humble "kibbie," one of two species of local fish that have given the thrill of pulling in a real, live, wiggling "fishie" to millions of once and future anglers.

But there is another "training wheels" fish that deserves equal time -- namely the ugly but loveable horned pout. Oh yes, they certainly are both.

My first crack at horned pout fishing began, of all places, on the back lawn. The night became an instant success when Dad showed me how to pluck huge nightcrawlers out of the wet grass. In fact, if Dad hadn't grabbed me by the collar and dragged me off to the car, I'd have nabbed worms until the sun came up. But with a coffee can full of Mother Nature's Best, off we went.

A brief drive took us to my Uncle John's house, on the shore of Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro, where Dad began hauling out the gear and heading for the dock. It was beyond me why we were actually going fishing after dark. I mean, don't fish go to sleep like the rest of us?

Once the Coleman lantern was fired up and attracting bugs by the pound, I watched as Dad speared a finger-thick nightcrawler onto the hook, twisted on a pair of rubber-core sinkers and let fly, without a bobber. (No bobber? Hmmm. What manner of heresy is this...?)

Naturally, I followed suit.

Thus began one of those rare events in my life -- a chance to just sit and talk with my Dad on a peaceful night, dangling our feet in the warm pondwater, with only the stars above to laugh at us. (Dad died far too young, and those few precious moments are worth more to me than anyone will ever know.)

Oh yes, we also caught horned pout like crazy, 'til about midnight.

The horned pout, rightly known as a yellow catfish, is one of the ugliest fish in this part of the world. It has a smooth slimy skin, a flattened head and tiny little eyes, and those are the good qualities.

The main feature of the horned pout is a set of whisker-like barbels around the mouth, which kids call feelers. Forget all those nasty rumors -- the feelers are harmless. The long black whiskers are instead smelling organs, which allow a catfish to find chow in muddy water on a pitch dark night.

The dangerous parts of the fish, however, are three spiny fins -- one on the back and one on either side. These little buggers will prong you good, and hurt like the dickens, if you zig when the horned pout zags.

The only way to beat the spines is to grab the fish with firm authority, thus using the spines as handles. It never fails.

Cleaning a 'pout is a bit tricky, though. Their scales are too tiny to bother scraping off, and it's standard procedure to just tear the skin off with pliers. There's supposed to be a trick way of cutting around the head and fins and peeling the skin off like a glove, but I can't seem to get it done without trimming a finger in the process. Use the pliers.

Come dinnertime, horned pout is hands-down the best fish to feed the kids. While cooking, all the bones fuse into one big piece for some mysterious reason. One little shake and the boneless meat just falls off the spine. The ease of eating and the simple good taste has made catfish farming one of the nation's biggest commercial fish businesses, and it's easy to see why.

More important, though, horned pout are easy and fun to catch. Horned pout fishing takes the least gear possible, and the little guys will eat any organic material, from worms to doughballs. Recently, in fact, the whiskered fish have been keeping me awake during my midnight bass expeditions by hitting my live frogs on the surface!

Best of all, though, kids love to catch them, and that's the important thing. Besides, what better reason could a Dad have for letting the kiddies stay up past bedtime?

It's a night well spent.

-- Tackle Box --

On Sunday, August 29, a party from Tewksbury Rod & Gun club will be heading seaward for an all day deep-sea fishing trip aboard a Yankee Fishing Fleet boat out of Gloucester. The "We Jack" leaves the Essex Avenue dock at 6 a.m. but the restaurant opens at 5 for early birds. Bluefish up to 15 pounds are currently in area waters, providing for some fast and furious action.

This Friday, August 15, is the absolute see-ya-later deadline for mailing in applications for antlerless deer permits. The application form is attached to the bottom of your hunting or sporting license.

Coming up fast is the Tewksbury Rod & Gun club annual outing, which includes a pig roast, games and a flea market. Contact the club at 851-9208 to reserve a table.

Also next month is a proposed Shawsheen River clean-up day, courtesy of S.W.E.A.T., which is set for Sept. 12. Volunteers are needed. Call 858-3733 if you have a Scout pack or other group looking for a worthwhile project. A free breakfast will be offered, then burned back off again.

Cooking for the animals

His kitchen's a real zoo

By JIM ROUILLARD

Geoff Thompsett may be the only area chef who can say without reservation that he likes every one of his customers.

In the past, Thompsett has served six-course meals to merchant marines and parsley on silver platters to passengers of the Love Boat line.

But his present clients are clearly his hands-, paws- and flippers-down favorites.

Thompsett has been the food preparer at Stoneham's Stone Zoo for more than two years.

Like any good chef, the burly, personable, multi-tatooed Wakefield resident loves his work and provides a healthful, attractive, creative -- and sometimes highly unusual -- bill of fare.

His present assignment, moreover, has two features which any previous employment had lacked: his clients never talk back -- and some of their palates are both literally and figuratively broader than any he has ever served before.

Their tastes, in fact, are almost as varied and discriminating as Thompsett's own wide repertoire:

Fresh fruit cup, imported herring, seasonal local vegetables, succulent baby chicken, dried dog or monkey chow and -- for the especial connoisseur: half a rat -- preferably the latter half.

Thompsett -- an 11-year veteran of the British Merchant Marine -- landed in the United States in April of 1985. Two months after arrival, during a day off from his duties as chef at a local restaurant, he casually dropped over to Stone Zoo to ask about possible employment at the 26-acre facility.

"I'd always been attracted to the thought of working in a zoo," he said, "But I never really thought I'd get a job."

To Thompsett's surprise, he said, there was a job available -- as dietitian to the zoo's animals -- and he snapped it up as quick as a fish-eating sea lion will catch the occasional treat of a red delicious apple.

The amenities of Thompsett's job, after all, compare favorably with those of most other chefs: It's easier to stand the heat in the kitchen, since there is considerably less heat.

Almost all of the animals' meals are raw or cold -- with sweet potato and carrot for the mammal house the only fully cooked foods. Eggs are partially cooked, Thompsett said, to kill any possible bacteria in the albumen.

The view is an improvement over most enclosed restaurant kitchens, too. The entrances to the food area yield views of Spot Pond and the Middlesex Fells, and from the staff's lounge you can look down upon Thompsett's second-favorite animals at the Stone, the lions Reggie and Toto.

Why does he like the pair so much?

"Because they're in love," Thompsett said, "and he's such a wimp that she bullies him around a lot."

His number one animal -- who seems to be the odds-on favorite with staff and visitors alike is the orang-utan Betty, for the sheer force and variety of her personality and possibly because her eating habits (she has hands, after all) are more fastidious than most of the others.

Thompsett's job -- which he described as complementary to the zookeepers' duties -- does not involve direct animal contact through feeding or handling, but entails the ordering and oversight of the animals' food preparation.

Fresh eggs and fruit and vegetables -- provided by local suppliers -- arrive every Monday, he said, and may involve seasonal treats for the residents.

"It's easier to cook for animals than for the Merchant Marine," Thompsett added, "because you don't have to work as tight a time-table, and the zoo animals don't require three meals a day. Some -- the lions, tigers and polar bear, get one meal a day. The sea lions are fed twice. And the deers eat when they want. Their grain is spread and they can feed at their leisure.

"Of course, as for providing the food, the basics of catering are just the same. We all have to stress hygiene, whether for humans or animals. There are some differences in preparation, but basically I just like the atmosphere here. It's more relaxing.

"I would like to see some changes to provide more variety in the animals' diet," he added, "Though of course you don't want to make radical or sudden changes. Sometimes it takes an animal a day or two just to get used to something new. He may look at, sniff, and ignore a new fruit or vegetable at first," for example, then take to it enthusiastically after a while.

Thompsett, who has been a hotel chef in his native town of Worthing, Sussex, on England's south coast, first went to sea as a galley boy in the British Merchant Marine. He then proceeded through the ranks to assistant cook, second cook and baker, and "once you reach that rank you can go as chief cook."

He has served on cargo ships, oil tankers, and passenger ships, including the "Canberra," flagship of the Pacific and Orient Line, which runs the famous "Love Boat." His term of service also included half a

Sailing at Newport

PART ONE

I am stretched out in the cockpit of Ray's ten-meter sailboat, equipped with a full keel, a genoa sail and a custom-made mainsail. The boat is approximately six feet shorter than the types used in the America's Cup races, yet it is, when sailed adroitly, equally competitive. My right hand gently grips the helm wheel. Ray and Dorothy are sitting in lotus positions on the bow, soaking in the sun's hot rays and sipping drinks. They are speaking softly, so softly I can barely hear them. My great and good buddy, Tony Resta, rock star and devotee to all womankind, is below deck, getting sandwiches and beer ready for lunch.

A shadow suddenly blankets the boat. Instantly I am aware of a cool breeze of Narragansett Bay. Tiny globules of perspiration on my forehead and beneath my lower lip and on my shoulders evaporate, leaving my body feeling refreshed. I tell myself there is no other place on earth I want to be at this moment. Just then a huge power boat, which I've had my eyes on for several minutes, speeds by our port side, creating a series of large wakes. Cinnamon Girl rises sharply, then takes a hard dip as the bow slices through the rippling waves. My heart beats a little quicker and then I tip my head back, waiting for the glowing rays to once again emerge from behind the pesky clouds.

I could easily be a trillion miles away from the nearest hassle in my life, a trillion miles

Available housing up 16%

Sales of homes available through Realtor-affiliated Multiple Listing Services (MLS) in Massachusetts rose 16 percent in the second quarter of 1987 compared to a year ago, according to the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

A total of 14,041 property sales were reported versus 12,055 a year ago, according to the MLS report.

Listing of properties available for sale increased 20 percent over the same period (37,874 versus 31,480).

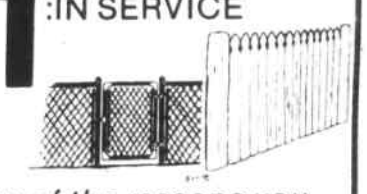

The average price of property sold was up 12 percent over last year. This is a decrease of four percentage points from the first quarter and an indication of slowing property appreciation rates in much of the state, according to the association.

The Central region of the state, including Worcester County, had the highest increase in property sales, up 41 percent.

Properties available for sale on Cape Cod increased 39 percent while sales dropped 11 percent. (Property prices on the Cape were up 19 percent, however.)

The data is based on reports from nineteen Realtor-affiliated Multiple Listing Services (MLS) in Massachusetts. The date includes all property listed and sold through the MLS including single- and multi-family homes, raw land and commercial properties.

His kitchen is a real zoo year at anchor "just bobbing on the water" on an oil tanker in the Persian Gulf after a pile-up of several hundred vessels during the last Arab oil embargo.

The differences in cuisine on a cargo versus a passenger ship?

Largely in the wrapping, according to Thompsett, as he outlined a typical merchant ship lunch involving soup, entree, main course, dessert, cheese and biscuits and after-dinner mints.

"There would be greater selection on the passenger liners," he added, "and maybe a better choice of aperitifs, wines and liqueurs, whereas cargo ships would mostly have beer to drink," but the difference is largely one of presentation, "a passenger ship getting the food served on a silver platter with a lot of parsley."

As for zoo cuisine, animals which are themselves a source of food for the omnivores at the Stone, he said, are killed humanely (by gas) and then frozen.

Thompsett added that there is a debate underway among herpetologists (students of reptiles and amphibians) as to the wisdom of providing live food to zoo animals.

"You must remember that a live rat offered as food to a snake is going to be fighting for its life," Thompsett said, "And he may injure the animal with a bite or a scratch which can later become infected."

The same might be said of zoo storks, which prefer the rear half of the humanely halved rat, by the way, since it provides a tail – enabling the stork to play with its food before eating it.

But there is still more to the live food debate according to Thompsett:

"Part of the argument (for live prey) is that there are chemical changes after death within the food itself. Take the frozen herrings for the sea lions, for example: the chemical change through freezing can mean a loss of vitamins. Yet we make that up with multi-vitamin supplements available in any local drug store."

As for the sea lions – though fish eaters – they occasionally like to munch an apple tossed to them by the indulgent zookeepers, Thompsett said, though he stressed the absolute importance for zoo visitors never to offer food to the birds and animals at the facility.

The staff, on the other hand, may sometimes sample the zoo's food supplies – for freshness and quality – or just as a small snack. "Everything here is edible to humans, after all," he said, "except of course for half a rat."

There have been no regrets for Thompsett in his two years of feeding the gentle, fierce and fine creatures at the Stone Zoo. And his happiness transcends mere job contentment.

"I love all the animals here," he said.

"Why? "

"Well, I think if you have an affinity with animals then you're close to God."

THE BIG CHILL: inside Stone Zoo's refrigerator, Geoff Thompsett of Wakefield displays some of the fare he provides for resident gourmets. Food may range from dog chow to monkey chow to freshest of local fruits and vegetables.

away from the memories, the pain. Here I am free, free from the shackles that have held my mind and heart prisoner for too long. I can recall their faces, still, but without the usual stabs of pain that regularly accompany such memory recalls. Go ahead, I tell myself. Picture them. Even whisper their names: Janet...Susan...-Diane...See, you did it and it hasn't hurt a bit.

It seems like just minutes ago that Tony was pulling into my driveway and we were packing for this sail. Just minutes ago that I noticed my mind wandering again, and the moisture building up behind my eyes, which I kept covered with the darkest pair of sunglasses I own...

Sunday, 9:30 a.m. Tony arrives at my house. He is dressed in a green and white sailor shirt with Paris/Milano and the Italian and French flags printed across the front of it, a pair of green walking shorts, a gray scarf tied in a knot just below his Adam's apple, a pair of old beat-up Topsiders, and of course, his infamous Revo sunglasses with Vuarnet holders.

I am wearing similarly well-worn Topsiders, a pair of white painter's pants and an OP top. In a gym bag I have sundry items, including a pair of Puma shorts, Coppertone suntanning mousse and a baseball cap with Los Angeles Raiders printed across the front.

We load two coolers brimful of beer and food into Tony's car, and depart, stopping briefly at a Dunkin' Donuts shop for a couple of large coffees and two muffins for the ride. We need to perk up following what can be best described as a hard Saturday night. Hard referring to work, not play, for the both of us.

10 a.m. We are motoring south on Rte. 128, listening, appropriately enough for a Sunday morning drive to Newport, WMJX's Sunday morning jazz show, with host Jesse Sandman Savich. Suddenly a hot number comes on, and Tony, being the natural musician he is, reels with enthusiasm. As he maneuvers the wheel, he whips open a daytimer he keeps on the seat beside him, removes a pen from the inside binder and then begins to jot down a series of musical notes which he hums to himself and me as the radio continues to play the complicated jazz piece.

He finishes writing down the notes and then holds up the daytimer and explains, first in semantics and then vocally, how the notes sound. Meanwhile, the jazz piece is still playing on the radio. Tony sets the daytimer down, inserts the pen in its slot and closes it. His excitement over the piece ebbs.

"Man, I've got to find out the name of this and who does it," he says. As if playing the drums, he moves his free hand to the beat of the piece. "Isn't it great! We have to listen, because they play three or four songs and then they give the names of the songs and the artists."

We listen and wait. As we wheel onto Rte. 24, Jesse Sandman Savich comes on the radio and announces the names of the previous several numbers and their artists.

"Here," Tony says, handing me the daytimes, opened to a specific page, "write down the name of the song and who does it, will you?"

We've counted the numbers, so when Savich reveals the name of the song we've been waiting for, I am ready with pen and pad in hand to write the information down. The song, it turns out, is performed by jazz sensation David Sanborn, and the number we heard is from his album, "Straight from the Heart." Savich says the name of the piece, and Tony repeats it, just to make sure I get it right. "'Run for Cover' is the name of it," Tony reiterates. "Did you get that?"

"Yeah, yeah, I got it," I assure him. Musical geniuses worry too much, I conclude silently.

"I like to keep these notes and use them when I play," Tony says. "I'd never think of them on my own. They're too complicated. And no one would ever know they're from another song. Musicians do it all the time."

Another jazz piece comes on. More ebullience from Tony. More notes logged. We pass a sign that says we are in Stoughton. We are still sipping from those two large coffees, but the muffins have long since been eaten.

11 a.m. We approach Common Fence Point, in Portsmouth. From a bridge high above Narragansett Bay we observe the marina at which our friend, Ray, keeps his ten-meter sailboat.

We exit off the highway onto a series of short, dusty roads that wind their way to the marina. A big white sign with black lettering announced that we have finally arrived at Lighthouse Marina. The marina is small, and from what we can tell, nearly all of its wooden slips are occupied with vessels, varying in size from tiny sailboats and power boats all the way up to luxurious power boats and sailboats. Two monolithic cranes, used to hoist the boats out of the water during dry-dock season, an unpretentious gray office building with toilet facilities and an ice machine, and several spacious parking areas make up the rest of the marina. On this morning the marina is bustling with activity. Understandably so; it is a brilliant day, warm and sunny with nary a cloud in the sky. The wind is subtle, but with any luck it will pick up around mid- afternoon, making it a quintessential sailing day.

We cruise slowly over a macadam road, past the boat house, through the parking lot, keeping an eye out for a space at the end of the lot, near the slip at which Ray keeps his boat, Cinnamon Girl. We glance around for Ray's black BMW sedan.

"I don't see his car," I mention to Tony. "Maybe he doesn't think we're coming."

Tony shrugs. "Not likely. We told him we were coming. Maybe he went out with his girlfriend for breakfast."

"Yeah, that's probably it. Why don't we park and wait." I glimpse at my watch. "Besides, were early. We told him we'd be here at eleven-thirty. We've got to give him some time.

Tony locates a spot near the mouth of the ramp leading to Ray's slip. He parks the car and shuts off the motor, leaving the radio on, still tuned to a jazz station, this time one from Newport. We open our doors to let through a gentle cross breeze off the bay. Fifty feet away, two young women dressed in khaki walking shorts and dark blue polo shirts emerge from the tiny gray boat house. They appear to work at the marina. One sits down on a green and white lawn chair in front of the door; the second remains standing beside her. They carry on a conversation, with the one standing occasionally gesturing toward the boats and the bay, as if speculating on the conditions of the day.

Suddenly Ray's BMW is wheeling toward us, its back tires kicking up puffy clouds of

H & R BLOCK TO OFFER TAX SCHOOL IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY

H & R BLOCK, the world's largest income tax preparation service, is offering a basic income tax course starting the week of September 12, 1987, with weekday and Saturday classes available.

During the ten-week course, students will explore all phases of income tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual tax returns. Experienced H&R BLOCK personnel will teach 1986 laws, theory and application, and carry students through the transition to the changes effective for preparation on 1987 income tax returns.

There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or persons wanting to increase their personal tax knowledge.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with H&R BLOCK. Many accept employment with H&R BLOCK because of the flexible hours available. However, H&R BLOCK is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are the graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R BLOCK.

Registration forms and a brochure for the Income Tax Course may be obtained by calling 1-800-872-5040 in Massachusetts.

(This course is regulated by the Massachusetts Department of Education. H&R BLOCK is a member of the Massachusetts Association of Private Career Schools.)

TUITION FREE

Bunker Hill Community Colleges is offering a one-year certificate program in Computer applications tuition-free to single parents, the disadvantaged and the un-or under-employed.

The program was developed to meet a growing need for Computer Application Coordinators. Graduates of this program will be qualified to work as Applications Coordinators, providing a bridge between computer staffs and the information being processed. Coordinators diagnose computer problems, use computer printers and operate micro-computers and terminals.

The program begins in September and runs through May. Classes meet during the day. Many recent graduates of this program have been recruited by local computer and high-tech firms. Others are continuing their educations by applying their Certificate credits to an Associates Degree in Computer Programming Technology.

The tuition-free program provides experience actually operating computers, as well as instruction in Math, Accounting, Data Processing and College English.

Bunker Hill Community College also offers additional support services including: College Orientation, Counseling, English As A Second Language and Job Placement Assistance.

Applicants must have a high school diploma or G.E.D. For more information, call the Admissions Office at 241-8600, ext. 420.

VIRGINIA WOOLF

"Virginia," the haunting play by Edna O'Brien, is an evocation of the mercurial inner life of Virginia Woolf and of her relationships with her husband, Leonard Woolf, and her lover, Vita Sackvillle-West.

The play is based on Virginia's novels, letters, diaries, and other writings, Leonard Woolf's autobiography, and Quentin Bell's biography of Virginia. The show is presented by the Cambridge-based Nora Theatre Group. Conducted by Eric Engel.

Performances will be August 20-22 and 27-29 at 8 p.m. Tickets: $10.00, available at Bostix and by calling Concertcharge at 497-1118.

For more information, call the Lyric Stage at 742-8703.

MDC land in Medford

Unihab, Inc. initiates clean-up

MEDFORD — Unihab, Inc., a Cambridge real estate development firm, has recently begun the clean-up of approximately three acres of MDC land in Medford. Left untended and littered for some time, it is a wedge shaped piece of land adjacent to the Riverside Yacht Club. The strip of land is bounded by the banks of the Mystic River bordering "Shipside Green," Unihab's 89 townhouse condominium development currently under construction. According to the Cambridge Co.'s Partner-in-Charge, Gwendolen Rono, Unihab initially contacted the Metropolitan District Commission in 1985 with an offer to manage the clean-up of the area. Last May the offer was approved and Unihab has moved ahead with the plans which call for approximately $30,000 of clean-up, landscape design, re-seeding and planting work.

The MDC land borders the southern edge of the development. The plans call for extending a walking path along the river thereby expanding the neighboring Mystic Reservation's 16 acres of tended parkland. Additionally, the pedestrian-only path being laid is intended to help complete a future link between downtown Medford and the Wellington MBTA station. Unihab is building a custom made wood-stained fence along Shipside Green's perimeter which will maintain a clear separation of public and private lands.

According to Unihab Project Manager, Charles Navratil, "Cleaning up this strip of recreation land will be a real asset to both the Shipside Green community and the larger Medford community. It's a beautiful walk along the river's edge with the Boston skyline in full view."

Navratil explained the work involves cleaning and "grubbing" (the removal of undesirable vegetation), regrading and seeding. It is currently underway and should be completed by fall. P.J. Stella Construction Corporation, the contractor for Shipside Green, will oversee the work designed by Cummin Associates, the landscape architect for the formal landscaping work on the Shipside Green site.

The re-planting of the land along the river together with the more extensive landscaping at Shipside Green will result in substantial upgrading of the open land in the area. The Shipside Green formal gardens, which will feature plantings including Magnolia, Japanese crabapple, Dogwood trees, rhododendron, mountain laurel and honeysuckle are the focus for many of the townhouses there.

Shipside Green is a development of 89 wood-frame, 2 bedroom garden style and townhouse condominiums being built in 2 phases of 45 and 44 residences. Many of the condominiums have spectacular views of the Mystic River and the Boston skyline. Prices begin at $175,000. Dee Alten, the on-site Sales Director recently said, "We feel very fortunate that already over one-third of our residences are under agreement. Our first occupants will be moving in this fall. And its only been in the last two weeks that prospective buyers have been able to get an idea how splendid Shipside Green is really going to be." The Sales Center is now open Saturday through Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., directly across Ship Avenue from the construction. For further information call 396-4200.

Free conservation brochure

The National Arbor Day Foundation has published a Conservation Trees brochure which is available to the public free of charge.

The Conservation Trees brochure uses colorful photos and illustrations and easy-to-understand descriptions to help people plant and care for conservation trees.

The contents of the guide include:

*How to use shade trees and windbreaks to save energy in your home.

*How to attract songbirds to your yard.

*How to save trees during construction.

*How to save topsoil and help farm profits with shelterbelts.

*The right way to plant trees.

*The right way to prune trees.

"The National Arbor Day Foundation's Conservation Trees program encourages Americans to plant, manage, and preserve trees to conserve soil, energy, water, and wildlife," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director said.

"The Conservation Trees brochure is a central part of this educational project. It serves as a useful guide for people in all areas, whether they live in America's largest cities or in the country."

Vision returned after 53 years

Frank Fraser of Woburn was 15 years old when an auto accident sent him crashing through the windshield of a car. Although the young man survived and was lucky enough to recover from his immediate injuries, this brief, terrible experience was to touch his life many years down the road.

Over the next 30 years, his eyesight steadily diminished, the result of trauma to his right eye from the long ago accident. Ultimately, the eye went blind. The culprit was a cataract, a clouding over of the lens in the eye, whose delicate balance had been upset.

Over the years, Frazer's good eye learned to compensate as much as possible. He even worked for 12 years as a wood pattern maker, an occupation involving prolonged close work. And in recent years, the physically fit 68 year old has worked in another profession requiring good visual precision, carpentry. But, as time went on, he was beginning to see halos around objects. And it was increasingly difficult and frustrating for him to judge distances, a consequence of monocular (one eye) vision.

The drama finally reached a happy conclusion one recent afternoon in Stoneham's Horsley Eye Clinic, when after 53 years of impaired vision, sight was returned to Frazer's blind eye.

"I thought I was getting by all right, but I see what I was missing. I'm really impressed, really impressed," he said elated.

The procedure Dr. Will Horsley performed to restore Frazer's vision, known as extracapsular extraction, has been a boon to people suffering from cataracts.

Yet in 1981, when Dr. Horsley who is chief of Ophthalmology at New England Memorial Hospital, introduced the procedure into his Stoneham practice, he was one of a handful of surgeons in the area using the new controversial form of cataract microsurgery.

In this procedure the surgeon, peering through a microscope, makes a small incision in the white tissue of the eye. Using a specially designed needle, he sucks out the cataract and slips in a new artificial lens right behind the pupil "where God intended the lens to be," Dr. Horsley observes.

That is perhaps the most important feature of the new procedure: where the lens is placed in the eye. Formerly, the lens was inserted in front of or on the pupil, rather than in its natural position behind the pupil.

In the world of microsurgery, where sutures can be ¼ the thickness of a human hair, seemingly small differences like this can have vast and dramatic effects. The new procedure means the eye undergoes a lot less trauma. Healing is much quicker. "Chances for the most improved vision are much better," says Dr. Horsley.

In Frank's case, the entire procedure took less than 20 minutes. He went home the same day.

Dr. Horsley became a strong proponent of extracapsular extraction during fellowship training with noted ophthalmologist Dr. William Harris in Dallas who developed the technique.

"I had a chance to do a thorough comparison of implants, including some very early operations performed in the late 40's and early 50's.

As I gathered huge amounts of information, I was able to see which techniques had the greatest success rates," he recalls.

His experience in Dallas told him that was the extracapsular extraction.

"If a patient doesn't get good results, you have to live with it. Once you do surgery on someone's eye it becomes, in many ways your own eye." he says.

But the often conservative New England medical establishment didn't welcome the new procedure with open arms. The new operation required surgeons to learn new techniques whose effectiveness many felt were unproven. In fact, Dr. Horsley and his fellow mavericks were sometimes openly criticized by their colleagues. It wasn't until its December, 1986 meeting that the New England Ophthalmological Society embraced extracapsular extraction as the technique of choice in cataract surgery.

A lot of Dr. Horsley's patients in the Middlesex East area are glad he pressed on against the powerful current of medical practice. There is, for exar..ple, Robert Gay of Melrose whose restored sight enabled him to keep his job as a printer, his hobby as a photographer, and once again drive a car. Gay was the first person to have the operation at Stoneham's New England Memorial Hospital five years ago.

Harry Howe of Stoneham, an 81 year old retired Navy Captain, heard about that operation after it was reported in his local newspaper. His 15 years of blindness in one eye and impaired vision in the other ended in 20 minutes at the Horsley Clinic. At a reunion of his World War II shipmates, he was able to see his old comrades-in-arms and renew friendships.

In Lancaster, Massachusetts, one of Dr. Horsley's patients was May Hurlbutt who showed how effective the procedure can be even on the very old. She was 103. Afterward, she could read her favorite newspapers and magazines, without glasses. She was the oldest woman in the country to have the operation, according to Dr. Horsley.

And recently there was Richard Molleo, a New Bedford resident whose sharply deteriorating vision made him legally blind at age 37. He was able to continue his job, which involved reading meters and gauges, and play golf after Dr. Horsley restored his sight.

"The day after surgery, when Dr. Horsley took the bandages off, it was one of those very clear, sunny days," Melleo said recently. "When I opened my eyes, I looked out. I couldn't believe how blue the sky was. I hadn't seen a blue sky like that in a very long time."

VISION RETURNED AFTER 53 YEARS. A blind eye caused by a car accident at age 15 often made carpentry a difficult and frustrating job for Frank Frazier of Woburn until his sight was restored recently at the Horsley Clinic.

Trivia

The hollow, nectar-sucking tongue of the hawkmoth is the longest in the insect world — as long as 10 inches, says National Geographic World.

Caspian seals migrate from the Caspian Sea's northern ice in winter south to deep, cool water in summer, says National Geographic.

The remote areas of New Zealand are known as "wop-wops," says National Geographic.

For 103 year-old May Hurlbutt, cataract surgery was a "snap"

Cataract removal used to mean difficult surgery and a long hospital stay. No more. Now it can take less than 20 minutes. Then home you go. No overnight stay. New procedures make it quicker, safer, more effective. And painless. "A snap," according to May Hurlbutt, a great patient and inspiring woman.

If you think you, or someone you know, have cataracts or any other eye problems, call us now. The Horsley Clinic. Eye surgery is our specialty. Advanced cataract surgery equipment. Board-certified ophthalmologists. Bright, clear vision is one of the most precious things you can have, at any age.

Roving

dust behind it. He spots us and parks several spaces over. Tony and I get out and saunter over to him. On the way we notice there is a young woman with long light brown hair in the passenger's seat of the BMW.

Ray and this young woman get out, grinning and tossing half-waves. We exchange greetings, then Ray introduces the young woman as Dorothy. Tony and I assist them in unloading their car. They have purchased more food for the sail and Ray has a dark brown leather bag containing some fresh articles of clothing which he's taken down from Boston. Tony and I return to our car to retrieve our bags and the coolers.

11:45 a.m. We prepare to sail. Tony disconnects the power line on the deck and at the outlet next to the aft storage compartment. When he is finished he coils up the bright yellow cord and stores it away in the tiny compartment. Ray, Tony and I then hop over the side to release the spring lines used to secure the boat to the slip. There are three lines: one connects to the bow, one to midship and the other to the stern. Ray climbs back onboard while Tony and I man the lines. I have hold of the bow line and the midship spring line; Tony has the stern line. Ray switches on the diesel engine and puts the lever in reverse, shifting his head back and forth to check the entrance to the marina. The harbor is clear of traffic. He slowly backs the boat away from the dock. Tony and I guide the boat away from the slip, making sure the hull doesn't scrape the wood. Then the boat is safely underway, Ray hollers for Tony and me to jump aboard. We secure the lines, then pull up the fenders, which are two large rubber objects tied to the port side of the boat to keep it from slamming against the dock as it is entering and leaving the slip. The fenders are also stored in the aft compartment. We join Ray and Dorothy, who are comfortably situated in the cockpit. Ray slips the lever into forward and carefully motors out of the harbor. As he gently grips the helm wheel, he proceeds to describe Cinnamon Girl to the three of us.

What we learn is that the boat is ten-meters long, approximately six feet shorter than the type of boats used in the America's Cup races. It has what is called a full keel, about two feet lower than average, which allows the boat to lean further and cut across the water faster with more stability than with a fin keel. Ray has just recently equipped her with new sails, including a genoa, nicknamed a genny (pronounced Jenny), and a mainsail. He points out the difference between a genny and jib: the genny extends beyond the mainsail's mast. Both the genny and the mainsail are custom-made to Ray's specifications. He adds that the top hull speed of his boat is slightly over seven knots, which with good wind, can be reached with only the genny unfurled.

Tony asks Ray if today is sufficiently windy to reach seven knots. Ray replies, "It should be. See those little white caps out there?" — he points to the tiny two-foot swells rolling in from Narragansett Bay — "When you see those white caps on the top of the waves like that it means the wind is pretty good. We should pick up a little more around three o'clock. Then we should be able to do some real sailing."

We make a port tack and motor out onto the Sakonnet River. We are surrounded by dozens of sailboats and power boats. Ray notes that sailboats, under sail power, always have the right of way. As a power boat approaches, Ray instructs us to watch how the power boat yields to the port side of a sailboat, under sail power, beside us. As it rushes past us, a quarter of a football field away from us, it leaves behind a huge wake, which our boat must now negotiate. It does so with ease. Suddenly Tony points toward the tip of the boom, just inches from Ray's head. A large bumble bee is positioned there! We wonder how a bee has managed to hitch a ride with us. I indicate that I am allergic to bee stings. Just then the bee swoops down toward Ray, who ducks away, and then towards Tony. I don't wait for it to plunge in my direction; I immediately crouch down into the middle of the cockpit, waiting for somebody to tell me the bee has flown elsewhere.

"Dive! Dive! Dive! " I cry out jokingly, just as the bee makes another pass at Tony, who is leaning nearly overboard at this point. Ray decides to act oblivious to the creature, surprising the heck out of the rest of us. "Apparently you are lucky enough not to be allergic to bee stings," I add.

At once Tony announces that the bee has taken flight to another part of the river, and I safely return to my perch at the rear of the helm, behind Ray. Ray puts the lever in neutral, declaring we are going to unfurl the genny. He instructs Tony to go below deck to retrieve the winch handles, which are used to wind the sail lines while unfurling and furling the sails. Tony returns to the cockpit with the handles. Ray further instructs Tony on how to attach the winch handles to the winches and then release the genny. Seconds later the genny is unfurled and being pushed by the wind. Ray shuts off the engine and the boat begins to pick up speed under sail power. Ray instructs me to switch on the knots meter. It reads two and a half knots, but increasing steadily. Ray tacks into the wind and the boat picks up more speed. The meter now reads nearly four knots.

"Can you feel the wind picking up?" Ray asks. "We should be getting up to around five and a half or six knots shortly."

He is right; the wind is pushing the genny to its limits and Cinnamon Girl begins to cut faster and faster through the waves. The meter edges up to five knots, then five and a half knots, then six, just as Ray has predicted.

Ray, who has stood behind the wheel since we left the marina, finally sits down. Still in control at the helm, he casually remarks, "What do you think, kids? Isn't this the life?"

Tony and I flash two big grins in agreement. "Yeah," I concur, "this is the life."

2 p.m. After tacking back and forth across the Sakonnet River for a little more than two hours, we decide to eat lunch. Dorothy goes below and unpacks the sandwiches she and Ray have brought along, then distributes them. The boat slows to a near stand-still, and we experience just how hot the sun's rays are, prompting us to rub more sun screen on our skin. The beers we consume seem to have little effect on us; the mild tipsy feeling quickly dissipates, leaving behind sweaty foreheads that fail to dry while the boat gently bobs about atop the small waves.

Ray mentions he'd like to raise the mainsail, which he pronounces "mainsill," but the rest of us agree that we are too relaxed to go through the effort of removing the mainsail cover and hoisting it to the top of the mast. As he continues to contemplate raising the mainsail, Ray nods in the direction of Newport, about an hour of sailing time away from this point, noting that his boat, called a Sea Sprite, used to be manufactured there.

"They no longer make them," he adds. "It's too bad. They are beautiful, very fast boats. One of the best sail boats for racing ever made, in fact."

After seeing for ourselves that his boat can indeed get up to nearly seven knots under just the power of the genny, both Tony and I agree: the Sea Sprite is certainly a fast sail boat.

We finish eating, then resume our sail down the Sakonnet River. The fair weather clouds have burned off completely and the wind has picked up slightly. Ray instructs Tony to take over at the helm, while he sits back and enjoys the sail. Before long Tony has Cinnamon Girl cruising down the river at nearly seven knots. As the boat leans far to the starboard side, I sit on the edge, gripping the life line, and dangle my feet in the water. The salty spray whips up into my face, cooling me. By now we have all forgotten the pressures of our everyday routines back home. For now it is only the sea and us.

"It's a different life out here," Ray reminds us. "A different world."

I smile from my perch on the starboard side. "Yeah," I concur again, "it's a different world all right."

I glance at Tony; the look on his face reveals he is feeling the same jubilation as I. Clearly we are hooked. Both of us have sailed before, but neither has experienced the thrill of racing down the Sakonnet River, heading towards Newport. For the moment, neither cares if we ever get back to Boston. Boston, with its hot, sticky, exhaust-filled air and its miserably crowded, scorching sidewalks. On the Sakonnet River we are free and the air is clean and crisp, despite the heat. And there are no crowded sidewalks to negotiate. Out here the worst thing we have to worry about is who has the right of way and who gets up for the next round of beers, those lovely frosty beers.

So we think.

KARATE CHAMPIONS

The 1987 Boston Summer Open Karate Championships will be held on Saturday, August 15 at the Walter Brown Arena, Boston University, in Boston.

The event will feature martial arts competitors from all over the country, including the Atlantic World Karate Team and also special guest 10th Degree Black Belt, Ed Parker of Pasadena, California who was an instructor and friend to Elvis Presley and has been in many films including Revenge of the Pink Panther and Curse of the Pink Panther.

Tickets are on sale now at Brown Arena or through Revere Karate Academy in Revere 289-9535 or Saugus 233-8135. Eliminations begin at 9 a.m. and the evening show begins at 8 p.m.

FOR-SALE-BY-OWNER TV SHOW

The new real estate show on UHF featuring for-sale-by-owner residential properties has a new name.

The half-hour program, at 9 a.m. Sunday mornings on WQTV Ch. 68, is now called The Property Review.

Formerly called The Property Connection, the new name was chosen to more specifically identify to the public the program's format as a medium for home shoppers to review homes in the for-sale-by-owner market.

The program is produced in cooperation with Buyline, Inc., the first fully computerized real estate matching service in the U.S. Buyline puts owners selling their properties directly in touch with buyers via computer matches.

The Property Review airs properties registered with Buyline in full color, with purchase price and location accompanying each listing. Buyers are exposed to televised listings of single and multi-family homes, condos, townhouses and land from all over New England and border states. Sellers register with Buyline for a one-time fee of $595 and properties are listed until sold. The service for buyers is free.

The program also has a "Do-It-Yourself" home improvement series, "Notes on Real Estate Law" series by an attorney, and interviews with home service professionals, finance and real estate experts, consumer advocates and many other specialists in property-related subject areas.

For more information on The Property Review, call (617) 787-0500.

SILVER OF TIFFANY

The Museum of Fine Arts, Boston will present an exhibition, The Silver of Tiffany & Co., 1850-1987, organized as part of the activities marking the 150th anniversary of Tiffany & Co. Providing a broad overview of the silver made and sold by Tiffany & Co. opens on September 9 and remains on view in the Boston Museum's first floor special exhibitions gallery through November 8.

Tiffany's name has been synonymous with silver since the 1840s. The firm's silver design has covered a broad spectrum of styles and applications, and the exhibition will emphasize three main areas: the social impact of silver, its styles and influences, and craftsmanship and innovative techniques. The exhibition is guest curated by Charles H. Carpenter, Jr., visitor to the Department of American Decorative Arts at the Museum of Fine Arts, and Janet Zapata, Tiffany archivist.

The social impact of silver, particularly in the nineteenth century, was exemplified by presentation silver pieces and the opulent silver which graced Victorian dining rooms. The objects on view will include such objects as the massive three-foot high silver sculpture presented in 1887 by a group of Americans to Wiliam Gladstone, the great English prime minister, for his fight for Irish home rule. This presentation caused a trans-Atlantic controversy, with English newspapers criticizing America for "interering with British institutions."

The Victorian table settings will include pieces from the Caroline Astor tea service (1853) and the John Mackay service (1878). The highly ornamented 1,250-piece Mackay dinner and dessert service for 24 was made from a half ton of silver sent directly from Mackay's silver mine, the Comstock Lode in Nevada, to the Tiffany plant in New York.

COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for everyone. But we are always in search of events of interest to all. If you have knowledge of some, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about them.

Opportunities to Join the Nation's Leading Data-base Marketing Firm

Epsilon is the nation's leading marketing service firm combining three sophisticated technologies: data base management, research analysis, and direct response marketing, which is revolutionizing the way American industry is marketing its products. Our clients rank among the most prestigious in the nation — known for the quality of their products and services, as well as their innovation in marketing. Our rapid growth has created the need and opportunity for people-oriented individuals who pride themselves in their work and development as professionals.

SECRETARIES

We are looking for energetic, self motivated people who wish to actively participate in a fast-paced environment. Your ability to effectively oversee several functions simultaneously, and readily adapt to shifting priorities is crucial. Interpersonal skills will be important in the daily course of supporting several Epsilon professionals, as well as in projecting a positive image to other employees and to Epsilon's clients and prospects.

You must possess excellent secretarial skills (50-60 wpm typing) and have at least 1-2 years' secretarial experience. Ability to use memory typewriter, IBM and/or Apple PC a plus.

Please call Joanne LeClair at 273-0250, ext. 6373.

OFFICE SERVICES CLERK

Epsilon's Office Services Department has an opening for an individual to learn and assume a variety of responsibilities that encompass support of a facility and office environment with the following attributes:

- An outstanding facility providing top flight office space and a large IBM main frame computer center
- A professional class A office environment
- An advanced telephone system including voice messaging
- The usual complement of office equipment and amenities.

Initial responsibilities will be diverse but appropriate for your level of experience. Opportunity to assume other responsibilities will be determined by your performance of entry level duties such as processing of inter office mail, telephone assistance, and other administrative duties.

Please call Margie Weinrich at 273-0250, ext. 8015.

CLERICAL POSITIONS

You will be opening and sorting mail and scanning computer printouts. Other duties may include problem research utilizing a CRT, inventory control, quality control, and assembling packages for the client. Accuracy and dependability are absolutely essential.

Please call Margie Weinrich at 273-0250, ext. 8015.

Epsilon offers competitive benefits and compensation, combined with the opportunity to be part of an emerging public company in a growth industry.

50 Cambridge Street, Burlington, MA 01803.
